Paul Molitor grew up in St. Paul, and played High School, Legion and College baseball in Minnesota. Paul's career was forged on the strength of collecting base hits, versatility in the field and savvy on the base paths. As a member of the Brewers, Blue Jays and Twins, the seven-time All-Star batted over .300 in 12 seasons, stole over 500 bases and fashioned a 39-game hitting streak in 1987. Molitor collected a record 5 hits for Milwaukee in Game 1 of the 1982 World Series and 11 years later, earned World Series MVP honors for Toronto. Appearing in at least 400 games at three positions, Molitor totaled 3,319 hits, eighth on the all-time hit list.
